leadership to the city to showcase the opportunities," Mayank says. "We invited our international directors and clients to Lucknow for an exposure tour to inform them about the change in perception about the state in the backdrop of the improved law and order and the recent Global Investors Summit," he says. Based in Mumbai, Adrosonic has its strong presence in US, UK and South America. Mayank said that his decision to make Lucknow as the base of his company was both emotional and rational. "I am a graduate from the Institute of Engineering and Technology and entered the IT sector in 2004-2005. Having worked with leading companies in various domestic and international locations, I decided to start my own business in Mumbai a decade back. Over the past 2-3 years, I saw visible changes in Lucknow during my recent visits," said Mayank, who has set up his office in Gomtina-gar. With a budget of Rs 30 crore, the company is planning to establish a commercial building in Gomtina-gar which will have at least 100 employees. TNN
