Lucknow: Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath on Friday said that his government is aiming to bring the eight aspirational districts above the state's average developmental growth in the next two years.

Aspirational districts are the most backward districts, socio and economically, which are being developed by the state government.

Addressing researchers from 100 aspirational developmental blocks in the state during a programme, the CM said that the target could be achieved if the people of aspirational districts were connected with the existing development and welfare schemes of the government.

"This will not only accelerate the state's development but also fulfil its dream of becoming self-reliant," he said.
