The CM also gave appointment letters to newly recruited employed trainees. Loans worth Rs 500 crore for self-employment were also sanctioned during the programme jointly organized by Uttar Pradesh Skill Development Mission, Labour and Employment Department and Government ITI.

"When Pt Deendayal Upadhyaya gave the slogan of 'work for every hand, water for every field', it appeared an impossible target. However, after 2014, Prime Minister Narendra Modi has turned it into reality. The double-engine government is providing employment opportunities to every individual without any discrimination," he asserted.

"PM Modi has enabled a corruption-free system by opening Jan Dhan accounts, transferring funds through DBT and connecting villages with Digital India. Through schemes like Make in India, Startup India, Standup India, and Mudra Yojana, employment and self-employment opportunities have been promoted for the youth across the country," he said.

He said that the youths who came to the Rozgar Mela but could not get employment would be linked to the PM-CM Internship Scheme under which they would receive training and stipend.

"The government would cover half of the stipend, while the remaining will be contributed by the industry. After receiving training, the youths will get employment," he said.

"Keep the spirit of hard work, choose the field of your interest, acquire relevant training and the government will ensure your job," he said.

Extending his wishes to people for Ashtami, Navami, and Vijayadashami, the CM prayed to goddess Bhagwati and Lord Ram to fulfill the wishes of all.

Speaking on investments and growing job market, the CM said: "In the past, the state struggled to attract investments, but today, it has attracted investment proposals of Rs 38 lakh crore. These investments hold the promise of generating job opportunities for around 1.1 crore individuals. When the youth gets trained as per industry requirements, they can easily get employed in their own state and district."

He also highlighted the success of ODOP scheme and said that many people considered traditional craft industry to be outdated but the government integrated these industries with modern technology, effective branding, and robust marketing. "This resulted in the creation of 40 lakh jobs within this sector during lockdown," he said.

He said that during the challenging times of lockdown, the government ensured safe return of people from other states to their homes in UP and provided them employment opportunities. "Many individuals who returned to Uttar Pradesh have since been contributing to the state's economy," the CM added.

"In the past, only three crore tourists used to visit UP annually. This number has surged to 32 crore," he said, adding that the tourism sector was a vital source of employment.

"At least 450 homestays have been registered in Ayodhya, while there is a plan to increase this number to over 1,500. Homestays not only offer lodging options but also create employment opportunities. Young people can work as tourist guides," he pointed out.

"No one is inherently ineligible. If someone appears to be lacking in certain areas, it signifies a need for proper guidance," the CM said, emphasizing the importance of Rozgar Mela, which involved 125 companies offering around 34,000 jobs, as a platform for capable recruitment. He encouraged the youth to persistently strive for goals, emphasizing that the government is committed to provide them opportunities.

Highlighting the self-reliance of women, he acknowledged the increasing leadership roles that girls are assuming in various fields.

In Ayodhya, he inaugurated 51 buses which will be operated by women drivers and conductors.

He praised Baroda UP Bank for distributing loans worth Rs 500 crore for self-employment.
