Noida International Airport (NIA) entered the last round of preparation before being operational for general people. The management of NIA on Tuesday issued an statement in which the authority said it has signed an agreement with technology firm Amadeus for providing passenger processing system (PPS) including common use check-in, boarding, baggage reconciliation, and DigiYatra-enabled biometric capabilities at the upcoming airport.

What will Amadeus do?

According to the agreement signed by the two parties, Amadeus will design, supply, commission, operate, and maintain the cloud-hosted end-to-end PPS for the airport. It will also provide a host of smart and modern capabilities including biometric-based DigiYatra integration at every passenger touch point to enable smooth passenger experiences, according to an official statement.
