- By 2040, Indian aviation is predicted to accommodate 430 million additional air passenger journeys compared to 2019.
- Here's a look at some major airports that are inching closer to completion and expected to begin operations in the coming years.

The civil aviation industry in India has experienced remarkable growth in recent years and has emerged as one of the fastest growing industries in the country.

The industry can be categorised into scheduled air transport services (domestic and international airlines), non-scheduled air transport services (charter and air taxi operators), and air cargo services (transportation of cargo and mail).
