Lucknow: Chief minister Yogi Adityanath said on Monday that UP was ready to become the new growth engine of India. "Over the past six years, our government has changed the perception that prevailed both in India and abroad that UP faced many hurdles that impacted its economic growth as well as that of the country," Yogi said while addressing the

"Today, UP no longer carries the burden of negative stereotypes; instead it is forging ahead on a positive trajectory," he said and attributed this remarkable change to the leadership of PM Narendra Modi, who, he said, has given the state a new sense of purpose and direction. Talking about the positive transition India has made in the past one decade, Yogi said before 2014, Indians were looked down upon in other countries. "But under Modi's leadership, our country has made significant progress on the path of development. The world leaders look up to Modi for solutions during crisis. We have seen how Modi model was appreciated during the pandemic."

Yogi said UP will achieve the $1-trillion economy goal in the next four years.
