

40% people in UP will live in cities in 5 years: CM Yogi

Lucknow: Launching 3,400 projects worth Rs 11,000 crore of the urban development department, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath said on Tuesday that 40% people of UP would live in cities in the next five years. While this was 24% in 2017, this ratio has gone up to 30% today, he added.

Speaking on the occasion at Indira Gandhi Pratisthan, the CM said that was the 'new Uttar Pradesh' of the 'new India', which not only carries out development works, but also preserves its heritage. "It ensures the livelihoods of the youth and respects the faith of people. It creates a better environment for security in the state and is committed to advancing the state towards prosperity through new measures," he stated. TNN

CM Yogi Adityanath at the launch event organised by the urban development department in city

► Smart City, P 12