LUCKNOW: The fourth edition of the 'Bharat Gramin Samvad' was held at Indira Gandhi Pratishthan in Lucknow on Tuesday in the presence of deputy chief minister Brajesh Pathak. The aim of this programme was to highlight the importance of women's participation in building a trillion dollar economy, among other topics.

Panel discussions were held on strategies for a trillion-dollar economy and workforce diversification at the programme organised by Transform Rural India (TRI). The first session focused on the crucial role of women in agriculture and the need to create innovative agricultural value chains, while the second session threw light on the critical need to increase workforce diversity across various sectors in Uttar Pradesh.

The deputy CM spoke about improving healthcare services in rural areas. He said, "We are committed to strengthening the public health infrastructure and increasing community participation in rural areas. In the near future, trained nurses from Uttar Pradesh will provide services across the country."
