

Uttar Pradesh to get 'New Noida' by 2041

Uttar Pradesh Approves Ambitious 'New Noida' Project with 4-Phase Development by 2041. New Noida will be designed to reflect the finest aspects of modern global cities, featuring eco-friendly buildings powered by solar energy and expansive green spaces.

 Listen to Story

 Share

Uttar Pradesh greenlights ambitious 'New Noida Project'. 4-phase development by 2041 (AI Image)

India Today Information Desk
New Delhi, UPDATED: Dec 2, 2024 18:30 IST

In Short

- New Noida city plan approved in Uttar Pradesh
- Spread across 84 villages in Dadri and Bulandshahr
- Development in four phases; completion by 2041

The Uttar Pradesh government’s ambitious plan to create a modern, state-of-the-art city, New Noida, has been officially approved. Spread across 84 villages in the Dadri and Bulandshahr regions, this futuristic city is set to be one of India’s most advanced urban centres, designed to surpass the existing towns of Noida, Greater Noida, and Ghaziabad.

The Noida Authority board approved the plan in August of the previous year. After incorporating public feedback, it was submitted to the state government for final approval, which was granted last week.